August 3rd - National Watermelon Day: While this holiday is technically “unofficial,” it won’t stop us from celebrating this fruit! Fun fact, watermelons are about 91% water! We will celebrate this day together with some juicy watermelon slices!

August 8th - Ice Cream Social! What better way to beat the heat than with a frosty, cold treat! Join us for an ice cream social, we’ll keep cool and enjoy a few scoops!

August 29th - Hawaiian Happy Hour! Please join us, residents and family members, as we “take a trip” to somewhere more tropical! We will have fruity drinks to sip and tasty snacks to munch during this happy hour event. A great opportunity to visit with each other and recall past travels!

It Be Arr-gust, Matey

Yarr, Matey, Arr-gust be International Pirate Month. But you don't have to talk like a pirate to appreciate the fascinating history and characters from the Golden Age of Piracy.

Spanning from 1650 to the late 1720s, piracy's golden age left an impression on historians and pirate fans alike. Many factors contributed to this era becoming such a golden age. For starters, many of the most famous pirates of this age were former sailors from European navies, with valuable training and experience. Secondly, this was a period when prized cargoes, such as gold and newly discovered tradable goods, were shipped via boat between the New World and Europe. Thirdly, European powers were unable to stretch their influence all the way across the Atlantic to the New World, leaving the North American colonies and sea routes vulnerable to attack. Furthermore, enlistment in the Navy was akin to indentured servitude, with hard labor and little freedom. Piracy, on the other hand, was more democratic and far better paying when successful. These factors made the era ripe for lawlessness and thievery.

Perhaps the grandest prize sought by pirates were the Spanish galleons bringing gold and silver back through the Caribbean to Europe. The English, French, and Dutch—all enemies of Spain—commissioned pirates called privateers to attack Spanish ships. Perhaps the most famous privateer in history was Sir Francis Drake, nicknamed "my pirate" by Queen Elizabeth I herself. Others, too, sought such valuable prizes. Captain William Kidd was initially hired to hunt down pirates, only to turn a pirate himself. John "Calico Jack" Rackham and Anne Bonny roamed the Caribbean like a pirate-era Bonnie and Clyde. Edward Teach, better known as Blackbeard, was one of the most feared pirates of the era and chief inspiration for popular depictions of pirates in books like Treasure Island and movies like Pirates of the Caribbean. The romantic legacy left by the pirates is worth billions today.

The First "Marinette"

When the first recruiting station for female Marines opened up in Washington, D.C., on August 2, 1918, Opha May Johnson was the first in line. The very next day, after passing her physical examination, she was officially sworn into the Marine Corps. Why Johnson joined and how she felt as the first female Marine are lost to history, for Johnson did not keep any personal records of the experience. However, records of her 14 years of service in the Interstate Commerce Department where she worked as Clerk to the Quartermaster General show her to be whip-smart. As such, she was likely invited to enlist. She was the first of 300 women who took over office jobs at Marine Corps headquarters so that men could serve overseas during World War I. They were first nicknamed the "Marinettes," but soon were considered so vital that all pretenses were dropped and they were simply Marines.

Lincoln's Penny

On August 2, 1909, the very first Lincoln cents were put into circulation by the U.S. Mint. Before 1909, a president's visage had never appeared on a coin. In January of 1909, the Mint approached artist Victor David Brenner to design a coin depicting President Abraham Lincoln to commemorate the centennial anniversary of Lincoln's birth. Two years earlier, Brenner had completed a plaque of Lincoln in profile for the Gorham Manufacturing Company; it was this plaque that became the design for the Lincoln cent, with Brenner imprinting his initials VDB on the reverse. When the cent was released, Treasury facilities were mobbed by those seeking the new pennies. Just one week after the minting, production of the pennies was halted to remove the VDB initials on the

Roanoke's "Lost Colony"

On August 18, 1587, Virginia Dare was born, becoming the very first child born in the New World to English parents. This honor alone would have been enough to grant the girl fame, but she became even more famous for her mysterious disappearance as a member of the "Lost Colony" of Roanoke. The founding of the Roanoke Colony in 1585 was the first attempt at establishing a permanent English settlement in the New World. The attempt was not successful, however. Due to a lack of supplies and bad relations with the local Croatan tribe, most of the settlers returned to England. A second contingent of settlers, led by John White, returned to the colony in 1587. Shortly after their arrival, Virginia Dare, White's granddaughter, was born. This small success was overshadowed by other hardships. Desperate for assistance, White sailed back to England in late 1587, leaving behind Dare and the others. If White had hoped for a quick return to Roanoke with fresh supplies, he was badly mistaken. The Anglo-Spanish War broke out, and White's return was delayed for three years.

White did eventually return to Roanoke, ironically landing on August 18, 1590, his granddaughter Virginia Dare's third birthday. The settlement, though, was completely deserted, and there was no trace of the 118 people he had left behind. Even stranger, there was no sign of a battle. The only clue left was the word "CROATOAN" carved on a fence post. White believed this to mean that the colony had moved to the nearby Croatoan Island. The colony, however, was never found, and their disappearance remains a mystery. Theories abound as to the colony's fate. Some believe they moved north and integrated with a local tribe, only to be slaughtered by another. Others say they perished during a drought. Still others claim they attempted to sail back to England and were lost at sea, or that they were killed by the Spanish. Whatever their fate, archaeologists and anthropologists have been searching for clues for centuries.
